Pasture and Hay Grasses.

The study of the more important grasses for hay and pasture lands, and of the artificial formation and treatment of natural or artificial, permanent and temporary meadows and pastures, and of the introduction of the same into the State, was early recognized as one of the most important questions the Farm could take up. and the growing interest manifested in our work shows the importance attached to the subject by our farmers.

Although the subject is a good one in itself, and worthy of great effort, there is danger, as in all new undertakings, that the efforts, being wrongfully applied, may fail of the desired ends and bring disappointment and loss on the individual worker, and more or less discredit upon the subject. Therefore a few words of warning and a very brief survey of the subject and of the line of experimentation we intend to pursue may be in order.

We want, first, a grass, or mixture of grasses (and clovers), that will give us a big return for our outlay, either for soiling or hay. This will usually be only obtained from an annual or biennial plant and necessitates a reseeding every year or two: Second, a grass, or mixture of grasses (and clovers) that will furnish a moderate return for our outlay, in grazing or hay or both, which under proper treatment will stand by us in all seasons, and even improve from year to year, raising the value of our land, as it surely will, to which of these we want and work up to it.

We are all pretty well acquainted, or think we are, with the management and rotation merit of orchard grass and red nate husbandry than for permanent occa- grase, pation of the land, and as we have no system of rotation of crops, we are left every two or three years with a piece of land we should like to keep in grass, but are compelled to break up if we would get a proper return from our land for the money

The question is often asked, "Which is depends-

Third, upon the climate. and be well treated to be seen at their best. It is admitted and urged that on a these grasses cannot or will not be confined to their respective fields they must not be introduced; but when they are in-

For such farms or farmers as do not want these grasses, there are other grasses and clovers which, if grown together and well treated, will form a pasture or meadow that will last for years. But here we come to the artificial formation of a permanent meadow or pasture, a subject of which we in this State know little or nothing. In the western part of our country there are large areas of natural pasture consisting mainly of one or two grasses, and some of the famous ox-pastures of England are said to consist mainly of perenuial rye grass and white clover, but the English meadows and pastures generally contain at least ten or twenty of the valuable grasses and clovers.

troduced and well cared for, they are permanent and yield large crops.

In the artificial formation of a permanent meadow or pasture, there is great difference of opinion among writers in regard to what grasses to use. In practice and in the natural meadows timothy, orchard grass, English rye grass and the clovers have usually a prominent place, but there are writers who condemn the use of any of these in a mixture for the permanent occupation of the land. Indeed, the same difference of opinion exists attention, and for a like reason Mr Baruch took in regard to others of the valuable grasses, depending probably upon the soil and climatic conditions which prevail. On ordinary pasture land all admit the great value of meadow fescue, meadow fox-tail, and generally of orchard grass, tall meadow oat, timothy, Kentucky blue, red top, yellow oat, sheep's fescue, crested dog-tail, English rye grass and red and then a crop of hay taken, and it would then afford grazing for the rest of the year. The crested dogstail and sheep's fescue are chiefly valuable for grazing sheep, and these, with hard fescue and white clover, will make a good sheep pasture, and to reach a class of larger buyers which my and would perhaps be the best pasture for our sandy lands and gravelly hillsides. For hay alone we believe a mixture of promise would be orchard, tall meadow oat and English rye grasses and red clover, as they are all valuable grasses, and on the separate plots of the pure grasses on the Farm facing the Hillsboro road they blossomed together and were cut at the same time, May 16 and 18. But we believe, after hearing the evidence of what has been written of late years, that this mixture would be better placed third cutting by the 20th of June. Next in order of earliness came the orchard, tall meadow oat and English rye grass and red clover, cut on the 16th and 18th of May, as above.

These should have been cut a few days earlier, but they were saved for visitors to the Institute to see. The meadow feecue was out May 26, at least two weeks after the above were ready to cut. Timothy and red top are coming in blossom together, and will be cut about June 15. Of the Kentucky blue, Texas blue (not headed out yet); Johnson (just coming into bloom June 13); Bermuds and crab grasses and Lucerne, set out in separate clots last fall, we cannot say much, as it Retail. takes two or three years for any of them except the crab grass to get well established.

The fowl meadow grass is not headed out yet. The other varieties of grasses and clovers on trial at the Farm were mostly seeded this spring, and not much will be heard from them this year.

Later some striking results will be given on the preparation and fertilization of our poor land for permanent meadow and pasture, while in August and September more work will be undertaken in this practical line. We want to grow most of the grasses on small, separate plots, to note their habits of growth, adaptability to soil and climate, their value for feed in both hay and pasture, and their period of growth and time of maturity. This will aid as in deciding which will likely prove valuable in mixtures for hay for this soil and climate, and which will mature or have most active growth in succession from early spring to late fall or through the winter for permanent meadow and pasture. Also we will put in several mixtures that seem likely to prove of value for hay, for general pasture and for special pasture for cattle or sheep. Some of these mixtures have been tried and recommended to us by tarmers of this State. We want to keep the farmers posted on the work we are doing on this important subject, to invite criticism and help and advice while the work is being started. We want each farmer to realize that we are working for his individual benefit so far as we are able, and expect his hearty co-operation. It is not enough that they $100 or $150 per acre. Let us decide give a certain amount of money for the prosecution of the work, but they should realize that this binds them to further and constant support, and to see that we do the most good for the State that our clover, timothy and red top, but with us means will admit. Let us hear from some they are nearly all better suited to alter- of our Farmers' Clubs on this subject of MILTON WHITNEY, Supt. N. C. State Farm.

Protecting Animals from Flies.

Raleigh, June, 1887.

At this season of the year the annoyance caused to animals by flies and mosquitoes often amounts to positive agony, and at all times, in what is called good the most valuable grass?" or "What corn weather, it is sufficient to prevent would you advise me to put in?" This the stock eating enough to keep them in good condition. The animals will stand in the water or pass the greater part of the day in the shade, rather than expose themselves to the sunshine, going out to eat only when driven by hunger. They lose flesh, the flow of milk shrinks, and a There is little doubt that, considering loss is incurred that cannot be easily made all conditions of soil and climate in this good again. CHARLOTTE, N. C. In hauling down this day (May 2d, 1887.) the flag which for nine years bore proudly and tri-umphantly the name of Wittkowsky & Baruch and hoisting in its stead that of S. Wittkowsky, I deem it not improper to give to the world the reasons for the change.

The conviction grew gradually on Mr Baruch and myself that both the Wholesale and Retail establishments could not be run in connection satisfactorily, as neither department could receive that thorough and undivided attention that each required, and hence the change.

I selected the Wholesale because I had given that Department for nine years past the most the Retail My name having now been before the public

One advantage overlooked when manure is applied on the soil, as compared with the use of commercial fertilizers, is that with the decomposition of manure is a liberation of carbonic seid gas, which acts upon the soil chemically and assists in providing a greater amount of plant food by rendering inert matter soluble. The value of manure, therefore, does not depend solely on the amount of material added to the soil, but partly to the chemical effect.

CATARRH CURED. CORINTH, Miss., Feb. 16, 1887.

Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.: Gentlemen-Ever since I came out of the war, up to two years ago, I had catarrh. At times the disease was very offensive. I tried all the doctors that I could see, and nearly every catarrh medicine that I saw advertised; but I got no permanent relief until two years ago, when I began taking S. S. S. I felt immediate benefit from the medicine, and after taking six bottles felt like a new man. When I began using the medicine I was in a very bad condition; my digestion was poor, I had rheumatic pains in my knees, and my feet were always cold. These unpleasant conditions were remedied at once by

I ceased using the medicine after the six bottles, because I felt so well that I thought I was entirely cured. This past fall, however, I had a relapse—evidently I had stopped taking S S. S. too soon. So I at once began with the medicine, and I am happy to tell you that I am very much improved, my general health being excellent, and the catarrh rapidly disappearing.

I have great faith in S. S. S. for catarrh and blood impurities, and I recommend it to all my neighbors who are sick. Yours truly, C. C. Key.

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky, Feb. 24, 1887. Swift Specific Co., Atlanta Ga. : Gentlemen-Seven years ago a sore developed on my nose from a finger-nail scratch. I tried a few simple remedies, but the sore would not yield. I grew w rse every year for seven years. Many thought I had a cancer. Over a year ago began taking S. S. S., and two dozen bottles entirely cured me When I began with Swift's Specific I was in very poor health, and could hardly drag about. After I had finished the course of S. S. S. I was strong, buoyant, and had a good appetite. I regard it a most invaluable medicine for ladies in weak, delicate health. It s a household medicine with me.

Yours respectfully,

Constipation

Is a universal and most troublesome disorder. It causes Headache, Mental Depression, impairs the Sight and Hearing, destroys the Appetite, and, when long continued, causes Enlargement of the Liver, Inflammation of the Bowels, and Piles. Constipation is speedily cured by Ayer's Pills.

For a number of months I was troubled with Costiveness, in consequence of which I suffered from Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, and a disordered liver. My eyes also troubled me. 1 was elled to wear a shade over them. and, at times, was unable to bear ex-posure to the light. I was entirely CURED BY USING three boxes of Ayer's Pills. I have no hesitation in pronouncing this medicine to be the best cathartic ever made. — James Eccles, Poland, Ohio.

I suffered from Constipation, and, consequently, from Headache, Indigestion, and Piles, for years. Ayer's Pills, which I took at the suggestion of a friend, have given me effectual relief. I commenced taking this remedy two months ago, and am now free from Constipation, the removal of which has caused my other troubles to disappear, and greatly improved my general health. — W. Keeler, Amherst. Mass.

I suffered from Constipation, which assumed such an obstinate form that I feared it would cause a stoppage of the bowels. Two boxes of Ayer's Pills cured me, completely.—D. Burke, Saco, Me. Ayer's Pills,
